ICCX West Africa hits the nerve of the concrete industry

In April 2023, the organisers of the ICCX event series celebrated their debut in the West African region. The first ICCX West Africa impressed not only the organisers themselves. The more than 600 trade visitors from over 380 different companies from the concrete construction sector were enthusiastic about the concept of an international trade fair and conference, which is new for this region. Experts from all over the world had come together to exchange information about the latest technologies and trends in the concrete industry. Numerous partners and sponsors made the inaugural event a great success, which is now to be continued.

The second ICCX West Africa will again take place at the Grand Arena in Accra, Ghana, on 16 and 17 April 2024. A trade exhibition with more than 50 national and international companies from the cement, concrete and precast concrete industry will once again present the perfect opportunity to expand the professional network and create important contacts in 2024.

Keyfacts of 2023

- + More than 600 trade visitors
- + More than 380 different companies
- + More than 40 national and international exhibitor
- + More than 15 national and international presentation from experts touching all relevant topics for the west african market

Conference Program

The conference programme was a real draw in 2023 and the 150 or so seats in the auditorium were permanently occupied. This demonstrates the great interest shown by visitors and the appreciation of further training and the need for technological development in this region.

A top-class conference programme awaits visitors once again this year, with both national and international expertise represented. The needs of the local concrete industry are always taken into account when selecting topics.

Due to the particular interest in an open exchange between the participants, the organisers are adding a panel discussion to the regular conference programme this year. The panel discussion will be held with representatives from the cement and concrete industry, the standardisation sector and from testing and research institutes and universities. Active participation in this discussion is encouraged.
